FOREWORD

Dear Members,

Welcome to the fourth edition of our Club Yearbook. It's really encouraging to see that the Mini Rex continues to grow in popularity and is increasingly taking top honours on the show bench. Thank you for your enthusiasm and generosity in promoting our breed by either exhibiting Mini Rex or, most importantly, by encouraging and 'setting up' new breeders with good foundation stock. Special thanks for the many different ways in which you support our Club. It is really appreciated; indeed the Club's success is solely the result of your enthusiasm and generosity – thank you!

The Summer Seminar & AGM was well attended and many commented on the relaxed and enjoyable atmosphere, not to mention the generous portions of hog roast. Many thanks to all those who travelled to be at the Seminar, especially our Swedish speakers. In addition to the three yearly stock shows chosen by ballot, the AGM unanimously approved an additional stock show to be held at the London Championships in 2015. Preparing for the future was a theme taken up at the AGM in respect of 'self-penning' when it was decided that the Committee develop this with a view of producing a prototype for the membership to see.

I am sure next year will be an exciting year for the Club as our New Judges' Training Programme moves into a new area. This two-year programme is a modest attempt at providing some form of mentoring, instruction and practical guidance to those interested in finding out whether judging is for them.

Our overseas membership continues to increase, this is facilitated by the introduction of PayPal on the Club website. We now have members in Australia, New Zealand, United States of America, Sweden, Poland, Hungary, Malta and Ireland. A small group of UK members have been invited and will be attending the American National Mini Rex Club Convention to be held at the ARBA convention in Texas, USA, 1st–5th November 2014.

On behalf of the Committee I would like to wish you every success in breeding and showing your Mini Rex. Enjoy your rabbits, enjoy our hobby!

Making the Switch

by Hilary Kemble

Hi, my name is Hilary Kemble and I am a relatively new member of the British Mini Rex Club. I guess I have always been drawn to showing animals and started out many years ago with working hunter ponies. In fact, I was so dedicated that I left an inner-city London school and the very next day I moved into a dealer's yard in Mill Hill as a live-in groom. After a long break, and a spell of showing Oriental cats, I got into guinea pigs and had a reasonable amount of success showing my shed of satins and selfs. Then I discovered Mini Rex! A lot of people ask me the same question, 'Hils, what made you make the switch?' Well, there are many reasons, the first being space! Now for those of you who know about cavies, you normally end up with much more stock than you ever intended. Sows can live together quite happily so most people end up building a sow pen to accommodate large numbers of pigs. So, you end up hanging on to stock a tad longer than you should. The other thing, which is a real bonus, is the fact that Mini Rex are practically litter trained, in the sense that they tend to use one area. Not the case for cavies I'm afraid! It's everywhere!! And they eat for England! Another point I considered was the whole grooming regime or more importantly, how long it takes to prepare your animal for a day's showing. Preparing cavies was a long-drawn-out process involving baths in the sink and I even went as far as buying shampoo for chestnut horses to use on my reds and goldens!! Thankfully I have left those days behind although I am still aware that I need to groom my rabbits

(and I am still getting to grips with understanding what stage a rabbit is in when moulting and 'feeling' the different types of coats). I think that the sense of owning, breeding and exhibiting stock is very transferable, so once you get the bug, it stays with you.

In the short time I have been involved in the club, the thing that has impressed me the most is the passion and dedication everyone that I have met has for the promotion and improvement of the breed. Being a novice, I have never been made to feel stupid by asking the most obvious questions. I can see that encouraging the juniors and getting youngsters involved has got to be the priority for the coming few years, and it is great that some of the well-established breeders are passing on really good stock to those young members. I believe this club is only going to go from strength to strength and I am excited to be a part of it.

Teamwork Makes the Dream Work

by Lucy Berry

There are some things in my life I wish I could change; sometimes it's hard to accept that you just can't, and also frustrating. Despite all this, there is one thing I know I would never change: getting my Mini Rex. It is strange to think how some animal can make such a difference to your life; before I got mine, I wouldn't talk to anyone in public, and I relied on everyone to do things for me. This all changed when I got my Blacks. They are irreplaceable to me and will always take the top spot of my heart - another thing that will never change. I have met some fantastic people through acquiring my Mini Rex, and I think this is most definitely evident through the success of the British Mini Rex Club. From the word go the club has been a resounding success, and the Committee have been rewarded for all their hard work by a membership count that is through the roof. Garry, John, Mariann and Tony have dedicated hours of their own time and thought into making sure that the club was done properly, which has certainly been achieved. They say teamwork makes the dream work! This is undoubtedly accountable for the Fancy as a whole, and I am delighted to see that there has been a significant increase in Junior members this year (certainly around my area) - and some so dedicated to the Fancy as well. It takes good people to run good clubs, and the increasing membership for specialist clubs within the Fancy highlights this fact. This is our club, and our hobby; sadly I seem to think that some people forget this. It will only be as good as we make it - if we spend our time arguing over new breeds or judging systems I think we are forgetting the true purpose of the Fancy. This is a hobby, nothing serious, just something to enjoy. I'd hate to see it get ruined over something that has such little significance on the Fancy as a whole. I've grown up with rabbits; they have proved to be such an important part of my life, and I hope this continues for a long time. But I am worried it won't if we cannot treat it for what it's really meant to be. There are some truly fantastic people who have done so much for the Fancy over the years I have been a member, and it is people like those who keep it young and fresh. It's a fantastic hobby, and of course in my eyes, the best hobby. We've got a bunch of great clubs; sometimes I think it's best to forget all the bad things and focus on the good, because if you really do focus on the good, you'll see there's so much of it. It will always take up a very special part of my life; it's a great little hobby, and if you just dig that little bit deeper, you'll see the people aren't so bad either!

Falling Head Over Heels

by Kaliegh Branham

Brand new to showing rabbits this year; I've had the warmest, friendliest and most supportive welcome I could have hoped for! When I went to my first show with my little Black Otter buck in tow and a whole sea of unfamiliar faces and names ahead of me, I couldn't have imagined how quickly and easily I'd have been welcomed into this fantastic hobby - and how incredibly swiftly I've found myself completely besotted with the Mini Rex! With such an intensely soft coat, beautiful markings, the huge variety of colours and golden temperaments it's a wonder I managed to settle for Black and Blue Otters, as I honestly cannot stop myself from marvelling at every single variety I happen to cross paths with. When I can tear myself away from swooning over the rabbits, I have often found myself engrossed in conversation about them; I've learnt some priceless gems from members of the British Mini Rex Club and every single person has been a joy to talk to, I only hope that I manage to absorb every last piece of advice that is so generously offered to me.

At every show I have been to, I have met new and interesting people; each with a passion for their rabbits and with their own little tips and tricks for producing healthy and stunning stock. If I thought I'd learnt a lot then, I was in for a surprise when a good friend and fellow BMRC member invited me to join her to the Bristol stock show in the middle of the year. Travelling from Suffolk to Bristol was quite the journey to make - including the train journey down to Essex to meet my dear friend - but it was absolutely worth it! I hadn't seen quite so many Mini Rex in one show... ever! The variety of colours and patterns was fantastic and the members even more so! I took my Black Otter Mini Rex Albert in aid of supporting the club. Seeing so much competition, I couldn't help but hold my breath as I watched the judge skilfully assess him, picking up some very interesting pointers after judging had finished. I was overwhelmed with the information I was hearing; some really experienced breeders with fantastic stock offering me advice on care, breeding, and understanding the Rex coat! I took my first steps into understanding genetics on that day and I'm happy to say that I was so intrigued by it that I am continuing to learn and understand all I possibly can.

Following that Sunday at the BMRC Bristol summer stock show, I've since been in contact with some really wonderful members - having seen such a variety of patterns and colour I must confess I'm more than a little bit swayed into taking on a second variety! I'm especially in love with the Himalayan Mini Rex, and I've seen some truly fantastic Broken's, which I may be having some plans for.

I've read and heard a lot about the current Broken project and I'm very interested in the development toward the new 2016 Standard; what colossal challenge the Broken breeders have taken on! I've seen how passionate they can be over the Broken and listened to some very interesting breeding plans, as well as heard of some very interesting and attractive up-and-coming colours! It really is an infectious variety - with all its planning and intricate point distribution - I won't be at all surprised if by next year I wind up finding a few Brokens having made their way into my shed!

The further I've delved into the Mini Rex, the more I have seen about less popular colours - even some that require some degree of being bred back into the Rex coat. I understand that these colours pose a huge challenge to any breeder wishing to take them on but if my shed isn't full of Brokens and Otters in the near future, I may also begin my own journey into reintroducing some of the varieties less abundant. Whether I have any success will be an entirely different matter - but I know that if nothing else, I have the support of a fantastic and hugely generous community on my side.

Such a wonderful, warm welcome and such an intensely encouraging start! What more could any novice ask for? Thank you all so very much!

There Is No Smoke Without Fire

by Kate Evans

Being a novice in the world of showing rabbits, I decided to pick a colour of rabbit I loved rather than one that was popular or did well on the show table. I don't regret this decision one bit. I love a challenge so I chose the Smoke Pearl. I was attracted to the beautiful sky blue colour and shadings. In my opinion a well-coloured Smoke Pearl is second to none. The Marten pattern is another of my favourites so Marten Smoke Pearl was an obvious colour to have as well.

My first litters led to a couple of nicely coloured rabbits, but type was a long way off. So sourcing a good buck was essential. My next generation was much better, type was much improved and I had one or two with great colour too. There seems to be a good number of Smoke Pearls that are born far too dark, even slate in colour. Initially I thought I should not keep any of these rabbits, but upon chatting with other long-standing Smoke Pearl breeders I found that a dark coloured doe is often worth keeping for breeding purposes. This I have discovered to be the case, as my current young Siamese Smoke Pearl is bred from such a doe.

I chose to start my own line of Mini Smoke Pearls. I have been given a lovely Standard Siamese Smoke Pearl and now have my first generation from her. One of these rabbits has just won me Best Rex so I am very pleased with them. As I type, I have my second generation in the nest; my fingers are firmly crossed for these.

Next year I have some high hopes for these little rabbits. I am hoping to improve the density on the coats of the Smoke Pearls; my aim would be to rival the Blacks and Ermines! Long term goals have to be a Best Rex or three for my own line of Smoke Pearls and, dare I say it, a Best in Show!!?? Well, I can hope!

I do need to say thank you to everyone who has helped me so far: Tony Peacock, Garry Murphy, Paul Wanklin and Terry Edge. There are more names I could mention and many more than I could give, but that would take all day! So, watch out for me in the future. I have a burning desire to win but there can be no smoke without fire!!

Starting a New Breeding Programme

by Tony Peacock

When starting a new breeding programme, selecting sound foundation stock is essential. Read the Breed Standard for the chosen colour as this is what you are aiming for. Make sure you are totally committed and have enough hutches to complete the new venture. Keep the stud as small as possible using only rabbits that conform to the required Standard. I always breed for type and coat first but always use rabbits that are nearest to the colour required. I only use stock when in peak condition and moult free. I have found that, by keeping to this regime, my rabbits usually push their second coat through at three weeks of age and only take three weeks to complete. I only breed when I need to.

Breeders all have their own ideas on feeding and housing; they keep to whatever works for them as regards to feed but clean fresh water is essential at all times. Detailed records on all stock in the rabbitry is also a must. Do not be too hasty in moving stock on until you have let them fully develop. Remember - you are on a learning curve. Always try to visualise the ideal rabbit as this is what you are aiming to achieve. Join the National Specialist Club of your chosen colour as this is where you can receive invaluable advice. We at the British Mini Rex Club are always willing to help any member with advice and stock when available. We also encourage members to take an active part in our club and are always looking for new ideas to push the club forward. We also have a Breed Improvement Team to promote the rarer colours. The Team have worked to improve the Mini Himalayan, Broken, Lynx and Smoke Pearl and are now hoping to improve the Mini Dalmatian Rex. So the best advice I could give is enjoy your rabbits and your club, remember you only get out what you put in. The harder you try, the more success you will gain.

WELCOME TO THE JUNIOR SECTION

Who Needs Diamonds When You've Got Opals

by Aliyah Ajmal

It feels like I've been in the Fancy for far much longer than just over a year and a half - crazy how time flies by! Anyway, my Opal & Broken Opal breeding project is coming along great! I'm on my 4th & 5th generation of them. Type, coat, banding & overall colour are improving with every generation – and will only continue to improve I hope! What I look for in my Opals' banding is a nice slate base, with a band of tan on top (50/50) and tipped with blue. I have had a fair few snowballs in my breeding but have found this does moult out given time.

As for my Broken Opals, they're definitely a work in progress but I think I'm on the right track with them, my pattern has become better and I have clean lines.

My aim is to breed them to the new Broken Standard for 2016, which specifies 60% colour, 40% white. So far I have had at least one kit in each Broken litter that is near to the standard set. Just need to work on getting a better covering on the nose, as I have only had equal nose spots, but a butterfly is the best aim.

I have to thank Tony Peacock & Garry Murphy for their advice and support throughout my breeding - they might be at the opposite end of the country from me, but yet just a Facebook message or phone call away. I am also pleased to say that I'm now the Press Rep for the British Mini Rex Club, so remember if you have any results or show news to please contact me. Now that I only have a year left in the Juniors, I'm hoping 2015 is the year for me & there are hopefully some big wins at the BIG shows on the cards for me.

Junior Members – The Future is Yours...

by Fraser Avill

Over the last few years the British Mini Rex Club has been thinking about new ways to engage its younger members and in particular the Junior Section of the club whilst tapping into the vast knowledge of its more experienced members. This year, during the club's Summer Seminar, the club ran its first Junior Workshop led by Tony Peacock. During this session activities ran to look at:

- the colours of Mini Rex,
- how to groom and maintain the rabbits' coats,
- general care for rabbits and diet.

These sessions proved successful, and those who attended appeared to get a lot from the sessions. The only downside was a lack of Juniors there. Hopefully, we will see more of you next year!

During the Annual General Meeting our Juniors designed Christmas cards for the club's Christmas Card mailing. Thank you to Pat Gaskin for choosing the winner and runner-up, who were Ruby Preece (age 9) and Leia Preece (age 11). Look out for these in December.

During the afternoon we saw the larger-than-life Eddie Hutchings giving a talk on judging and the rarer colours of Mini Rex. This saw the Junior members being called into action to help with the stewarding. Well done!

Tips for Juniors

How is your rabbit judged?

The judge will look at your rabbit and score it out of 100 points.

Mini Rex score: 40 points for their colour

(For Broken Mini Rex: 30 points for colour and 10 points for pattern)

40 points for their fur and

20 points for their type (Shape)

Learning about rabbits:

- One of the best ways is to listen to the judge and this can be done when stewarding.
- Stewarding is where you help the judge and book steward by holding the rabbits at the table.
- When you are helping, you will often hear the judge talk about the rabbits on the table.
- You will find out what a good colour is, what a good type (shape) looks like and what the fur should feel like.

The unwritten rules of stewarding:

- Make sure you have clean hands and wash them before you go to the judging table.
- Listen to the book steward.
- When a rabbit comes to the table, make sure it has the pen number on the rabbit's tail.
- Keep an eye on the rabbit you are holding. Make sure that it does not bite or get too close to other rabbits on the table.
- Listen to the experienced stewards.
- Don't let the judge know which is your rabbit.

Useful things to take to a show:

- A step - to help you reach the judging table.
- A lab coat - this is not only to put your club badges on but also to keep your clothes clean.
- A puzzle book or small game - this can be something you do during lunch or when not helping out. (Some shows can be longer than others.)

My Rabbit Life

by Spencer Bartle

"Rabbits have changed my life, since I have had them. My colour is Orange Mini Rex. I have been very successful with my boy. My boy's (buck) name is Lightening, and girl's (doe) name is Vulcan. I got my Oranges in April and have done very well winning two Best Juniors in Show, Certificates of Merit and many cards. My friends are all of you but best rabbit friends are Lucy, Tony and Brian. My Mum has Blacks, Dad has Chinchillas and Harry (brother) has Otters. My girl has had a litter so I am looking forward to showing them next year. Thank you to Chris for getting me started."

My Pets in the Shed

by Harry Bartle

"I have Otters and have been showing my Chocolate Otters this year. I won Best Junior at the Otter Show in Derby, and at the British Mini Rex New Judge's Show at Deanshanger in September. I am looking forward to the London Show. This year with my rabbits I have bred some babies which I am looking forward to showing next year. One of the most important things is looking after your rabbits at home - and getting them ready for shows and having fun!

Good showing next year everyone!"

Some of our Juniors...

Leia – Best Card Design

Mason with his Broken

Another – winner Ruby

Jasmine with her Black Otter

Lucy with her Black Mini

Julie – a very keen prospective new judge

Amy with her Castor

REGISTERING A CHAMPION

The British Mini Rex Club offers members Championship Diplomas for wins with individual Mini Rex rabbits. In order to qualify, any ONE rabbit must have obtained 25 Challenge Certificate Stars (CCs) under a minimum of THREE different BMRC Breeder or Non-breeder Judges. These are then sent to the Club Secretary:

Miss Monica Henley
"Tameford"
55 Berry Hill
Hednesford
Staffordshire
WS12 1UJ
Tel: 07972 043256

All Challenge Certificates will be returned with the Championship Diploma.

BREEDERS' LIST

We have compiled from our membership a Mini Rex breeders' list, which has been arranged by area. This is not a full members' list but only of our breeders who may have stock available. Juniors are not included. Please inform our Membership Secretary (info@britishminirexclub.com) if your details change so that our database can be kept up to date, thank you.
